Now more than ever, the new section provides that the bill should be construed as applicable to all railroads, or transportation companies, engaged in carrying freight from any place in the United States, through the State of New York, to any place in the United States, provided, however, that it did not apply to transportation by water.

After some discussion as to the propriety of the bill, to day it was unanimously agreed to pass, and in the morning the bill should be taken up, and the debate be over three o'clock, when the final vote of the bill should be taken.

INTER-STATE COMMERCE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—The Senate yesterday rejected a bill of New York presented by Senator O'Donnell of William M. Evarts, and Frank S. Miller of the State of New York. The credentials which were usually lengthy, were read. The Chair Edmund said that the papers read did not contain any certificate from the Governor as required by the act of Congress. The papers were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. Bland from the Committee on Indian Affairs reported favorably a bill to authorize the Secretary of the Interior to extend the time for the payment of each several annual instalments to be paid by settlers on the Omaha and Otoe Indian lands to such time not exceeding one year as may be necessary to secure a favorable consideration of the Inter-State Commerce bill.

The question then came up on Mr. Bland's amendment to modify the bill.

TO CARE FOR GRANT'S RELICS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—President Arthur yesterday sent to the House a message concerning the generous offer of Mrs. Ulysses S. Grant to donate the trophies of General Grant to the Government. The President said:

"I take great pleasure in laying before Congress my vigorous effort to secure an appropriation of $100,000 for the improvement of the Mississippi River between its source and the mouth, in order to facilitate the navigation of the river and to remove the obstructions and mud banks which now exist in that portion of the river.

THE REVIEW

JACK & MIZE, Proprietors

The Philadelphia Record very pertinently inquires: "But what does a high tariff produce if not dishonest traders and corrupt officials?"

A PROMPTOR law is tersely characterized by a Philadelphia opponent "as an attempt to protect drunkards against themselves at the expense of sober people."

To a Philadelphia note of rejecting that "the liberty bell" is through the states where slaves no longer serv., a southern paper retorts: "The old bell would toll if he had to pass through Fall River or the Hock Valley."

The Post-Dispatch defines the now Pacific railroad measure, so earnestly championed by Senator Hoar and others, as a "bill to give the companies all they have the cheek to ask, without securing anything for the government or the people."

In Des Moines the number of saloons has increased from 60 to 102 since the so-called "prohibition" went into effect. As these sellers have no license to pay, they stand an occasional confiscation of stock which is kept low in expectation of such emergencies.

The Washington Star says there is a good deal of nonsense going the rounds of the press about cabinet officers and other public officials being rich. This is altogether unnecessary. As a matter of fact many of the leading men in public life have no fortune, and do not feel the need of any.

In his official report as secretary of the navy, Bill Chandler says that when the Tallapoosa was lost last summer she was on a "freighting cruise." The Chicago Times explains that she was "freighted with twenty-eight cases of liquors, a number of boxes of cigars, and the bargain with Ben Butler."

A CORRESPONDENT at Argenta writes: "If the government were out of debt, what would be the value of the money now in circulation?" Without pretending to be high authority on the subject of finance, we venture to express the opinion that it would be worth about one hundred cents on the dollar.

Iowa claims that a woman living in the town of Ames, in that state, is now one hundred and sixteen years old. We are not all surprised at such a claim. Iowa is a republican state, and if we are not greatly mistaken, her leading editors and statesmen claimed New York for J. G. Blaine last November.

Two friends of Blaine give him credit for the election of Gov. to the United States senate from New York, and the defeat of Morton. They also claim that he defeated the Nicaragua treaty. Should we have fine weather next spring, and a bountiful harvest next summer, they will most certainly give Mr. Blaine the credit.

In speaking of the Nicaragua treaty the New York World says: "We regard it as a piece of work full of robbery, and believe the attempt to push it through while republicanism is on its death-bed was designed for the purpose of securing a legacy of plunder for the executors and administrators after its decease."

Chas. H. Stahl, collector of internal revenue for the seventh district of Kentucky, testified before Mr. Springer's committee the other day, that twenty-five of the employees of his office went to Cincinnati on the day of the October election last fall, and a number of them told him on their return that they had acted as deputy marshals of election. The report of Mr. Springer's committee, which will be based principally upon the sworn testimony of republican federal officeholders, promises to be a "rich, rare and racy" exposition of the nature and methods of the party of great moral ideas in promoting the purity of the ballot.

At a meeting of the "Oklahoma boomers" held at Topeka, Kansas, on Monday, the conduct of President Arthur and the government officials generally was severely criticised, and censured. This was prompted by the action of the government in expelling bona fide settlers from the Oklahoma lands, and permitting wealthy syndicates to remain in possession under corrupt contracts made with government officials contrary to law. An investigation of the business will doubtless reveal the customary corruption and scoundrelism which has so strongly characterized the conduct of the department of the interior and other departments of the federal government for several years past. There is evidently something rotten in Denmark," and it is the duty of congress to look into the matter at the earliest possible day.

BY THE LEGISLATIVE.

Morrison for Senator.

Spoke to the review.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 4.—The democrats held their senatorial caucus in this city to-night, and nominated Hon. William R. Morrison for United States senator on the first ballot. The vote was as follows: Morrison, 61; Harrison, 18; Black, 1; Swofield, 1. General Black was not a candidate before the caucus, having withdrawn from the race Tuesday.

The Legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Feb. 4.—In the Senate to-day, Senator Streeter introduced a bill fixing the maximum rate of fare per mile on the principal railroads in the state at 2½ cents per mile, and on all others at the present rate, which applies to all. The roads affected by the new rate include the Chicago and Alton; Chicago, Burlington and Quincy; Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Chicago; New York, Chicago, St. Louis and Pennsylvania; Terre Haute and Indianapolis; Illinois Central and other.

The republicans majority disposed of Kelly's resolution which caused yesterday's deadlock in the Senate, by making it a special order for next Tuesday.

The special order for to-day which was the democratic protest against the seating of Senator Leman, from the sixth district by Governor Hamilton in defiance of the face of the facts, occupied the time of the senators during the remainder of the session. The democrats protested against Hamilton's action as an unwarrantable assumption of power, and the republicans replied with vehement denunciations of the Leman-Brand fraud which caused it.

Mr. James C. Flood, of San Francisco, will build a $1,000,000 house on the top of the highest San Francisco hill.

Jefferson Davis, told an interviewer the other day that John Quincy Adams was the most gentle gentleman he ever knew.

San Diego is pronounced the best of the health resorts of the Pacific Coast, as far as a dry and equable climate is concerned, by a recent investigator.

Many farmers who secure for themselves all the labor-saving improvements are slow in arranging similar helps for their wives.

Thomas M. Custer, Horace Greeley's first partner in the publication of the Tribune, is said to be writing a history of New York journalism.

All the locomotive manufactories in Prussia cannot make twice as many engines in a year as the Baldwin Locomotive Works alone.

By the order of Prince Alexander, of Bulgaria, an official history is being prepared of the part played by the Bulgarian volunteers during the Russo-Turkish war.

Rattlesnake skins are much used in Florida for ladies' belts, and slippers are also made of the same material, the serles serving as ornaments theron instead of bows or tassels.

In a recent letter to the Ohio State Forestry Association, Mr. John G. White says that he is honored and indignant at the wanton destruction of the forests in the New England States.

Young Daniel Boone, a great-grandson of the explorer of Kentucky, delivers lectures for one of the great Broadway firms of New York on a salary of $150 a week.

Four convicts in the Ohio penitentiary have each chopped a finger off in order to enjoy a repast in the hospital. Another poured melted lead in his shoe, and will probably lose his leg.

The Anglo-Swiss Condensed Milk Company, founded by United States Consul Page in 1866 with $1,200,000, now a capital of $2,000,000, and turned out 30,000,000 cans last year.

What Science is Doing for Modern Man.

One of the most important influences now at work in the cause of science, which is of course as old as human curiosity, and is only new in its results. That the effect of science is a great advance in scientific knowledge has been to modify considerably most forms of religious belief can not be denied; and in spite of the many attempts of some of the two, it is not difficult to see that some of the leading dogmas of Christianity are doomed. Fortunately, one of the rewards of the freedom that is given to science is a lack of venom in its attack, and, on the other side, there is an absence of bitterness in those whose opinions it unavoidably alters. There are, of course, exceptions; indeed science has not expected arrogance from the world, and, indeed, it has not wholly driven out bigotry. Yet, in the calmness with which the controversy is carried on, we see how wide-spread is the belief that dogmas are less essential than the truth when all men alike are seeking. A Professor Asa Gray puts it: "No sensible person now believes what the most sensible people believed formerly. Settled scientific belief must control religious belief." It is one of the time-honored jests which the late Lord Beaconsfield used to tell in his last novel that the religion of sensible people is what sensible people never tell. They may not, but their tolerance of new truths and the altered positions of ecclesiasticism declare all that need be known.

The present interest in science is distinctly part of the revolutionary movement which demands, with restless curiosity, why everything should be as it is. This is the question that is put to every existing institution, and science often gives a serviceable answer. The answer is a leveling one to all conventionalities, because science concerns itself only about facts, and it is heard now because science can only exist where thought is free. Freedom of thought is a powerful solvent, and it is especially destructive to all the conventionalities which exist by means of the common agreement that they shall not be examined. We see that in politics the divine right of kings is called in question, and in the uniform tendency of modern times toward democracy the assumption of government by those who are governed. In social matters we perceive a similar movement toward the emancipation of the individual. All knowledge advances from vague generalities to the comprehension of particulars, and as human beings have succeeded in understanding themselves they have thrown aside the convenient habit of dividing the rest of the world into vast homogeneous classes, and have recognized the dignity and importance of each individual of the race.—Popular Science Monthly.

A Man Who Never Had Teeth.

A man who never in his life had a tooth in his jaws was at one time a resident of Montana. This fact was brought to the recollection of an old resident of this city by seeing a statement in an Eastern paper that one of the most wonderful natural curiosities of the age is a 10-year-old German boy who never had any teeth and shows no signs that he ever will have any. The man referred to above was 60 years old and had never had teeth. His name was Joseph Bearclaw. He was a resident of Alder Gulch in 1864 and 1865. Although nature failed to supply Mr. Bearclaw with teeth she tried to make amends by furnishing him with long, strong fingernails and toe-nails, which were almost as hard as bone and fully an eighth of an inch thick. It is not known whether he got the name of Bearclaw from the circumstance, or if that was properly his name. He was from Illinois, which State he returned in 1865 or 1866.

At a meeting of the "Oklahoma boomers" held at Topeka, Kansas, on Monday, the conduct of President Arthur and the government officials generally was severely criticised, and censured. This was prompted by the action of the government in expelling bona fide settlers from the Oklahoma lands, and permitting wealthy syndicates to remain in possession under corrupt contracts made with government officials contrary to law. Wilson took his departure for New Orleans, where he will enjoy the many sights and wonders of the world's exposition.....Some of our citizens have been suffering very much of late for want of snow-blocks. Therefore, we have now made a snow-block machine, which devolves upon many men about this time of the year, of putting down a carpet has not received the attention it deserves. If you see man in the street at this season, with a weary, sad, dejected look, on his face, his back bent forward and weak, his thumbs and fingers wrapped in rags saturated in armeria, and who walks with an uncertain, limping gait, like a kine sprung horse, it is pretty safe to believe that he has just been through the annual free-for-all wrestling match with a carpet. Just at this time this country is fairly swarming with unfortunate men, who have been down on their knees for the first time in a year, and who swore more than they can repeat in a year's time. There is probably no other household duty that devolves upon man that he so heartily despises as that of tying his legs up in a double-hock knot, jumping up in a little bed over a carpet, and straining between graps for breath and muttered imprecations to hit a little insignificant tack in the corner of the room. The tack persists in standing on its head just at the time when the man piles the hammer with a frenzied effort, and he stops a moment to let about four gallons of perspiration soak out of him. It is worth double the price of admission to watch a man put down a carpet, and men who are not troubled with such laborious and heartbreaking duties, have been known to go more miles to see a man attempt to "down" a rebellious carpet, than they would to see the biggest prize fight that ever was. From the time the victim begins to think about his pro-active tact he is mad, and he grows madder, until the grand tableau that it usually takes place about the time the tapis is half down, and, puffing like a whale, and swearing at every jump, he goes down town and hires a man to come up and tackle the carpet. But he usually comes by taking the carpet in a roll, and throwing it down in the room, where he stands and glares at it and swears he will have it down in fifteen minutes at the outside. He drags a corner of the carpet up into a corner of the room, and puts in the first tack "just as easy," and he keeps on along one side of the room, driving in a nail, pounding the "map-boards," and knocking his thumb and fingers at every other tack. Then he gets muddled. He proceeds to stand or sit on the very part of the carpet that he wants to stretch up to the side of the room, and he pants like a locomotive, and wears off some more skin from his hands. His knees get sore every minute, he gets a crick in the back and he perspires like a tin water cooler on a hot summer day. About this time he is somnolent, as it seems as though he would burst, and his boots are full of perspiration, and he makes a last convulsive effort to lift the edge of the carpet up that he is standing on and hold it in place with his teeth, and with his head wedged against the wall he strikes wildly at where he supposes the tack to be, and mashes his thumb flutter that the proceedings of the star route trial, he jumps up with a yell and swears that is the last time he will ever touch a carpet, and goes home some time to do it, just as he always has done before. There are thousands of men in this country who never will know what it is to labor with a carpet and stand on their heels in a hot room for four hours at a time, but there is a very large class of deserving men who are compelled to stand at the hands of the treacherous carpet, and they are worthy the warmest sympathy of their more fortunate fellow men.—Park's Sun.

LONDON, Feb. 4.—A leader in last evening's "Pall Mall Gazette" advocating a political alliance between Great Britain and the United States after its victory. The Gazette says: "The American Republic is now at last beginning to have a foreign policy. The doctrine of complete isolation, so long maintained by American statesmen, has perished. Minister Kasson's presence and activity in the Berlin conference on the Congo question must be taken as a portent of things to come. America will continue to exert a great and increasing influence in the work of pacifying Africa. The Republic will, one day, be in alliance with us, whenever it is dealing with European questions."

England's duty, therefore, is to make the most of this great fact. The United States is England's natural ally. After the formation of the British Empire, there will remain for British statesmen no task comparable in importance to that of the conclusion of an alliance between Great Britain and the Great Republic which sprung from England's loins. This alliance will be close and useful to the two great English-speaking peoples as that between Australia and Germany.
